Habitat

Estuarine eco-systems such as the Choctawhatchee Bay. Commonly found inshore or nearshore, in seagrass beds, near oyster reefs, or in deep holes and trenches.

Behavior

In the warmer months (March-November), Spotted Seatrout migrate inshore to spawn in the protected waters of the Bay's seagrass beds. The seagrass provides shelter, food and a nursery for the young trout. In the cold months, they move offshore into deeper waters.
